Art Contest!

To enter the FASD Month art contest: submit an image, such as a photo or artwork, of “What FASD means to me” with the idea of portraying the reality of how people and families living with FASD have a wide variety of perspectives, and to challenge the assumption that FASD only looks one way. More details available at nofas.org/artcontest

Thunderclap Social Media Campaign

Link your social media account to the FASD Month Thunderclap campaign, which will be launched on September 9th at 9:09am. Go to: <http://thndr.me/Ui8vdD> and follow the instructions on linking your personal Facebook account or any Twitter account (an organization’s Facebook page can’t be linked).

Twitter Chat on September 6, 2017 at 2:00pm eastern

NOFAS, CDC (Centers for Disease Control and Prevention), ACOG (The American Congress of Obstetricians and Gynecologists), and NASW (National Association of Social Workers) are partnering on a Twitter chat for FASD Awareness Month. Follow NOFAS on Twitter at: twitter.com/NOFAS_USA

Fact of the Day Campaign

Each day in September, an FASD-related fact will be posted on social media by NOFAS and others, and everyone is encouraged to share these facts.

Enroll Your FASD Month Event or Proclamation

Submit your local event, activity, or proclamation to the FASD Month website at nofas.org/fasdmonth. Do you have an FASD event, presentation, or program planned for September 2017? Enroll it with NOFAS so others can join you.
